Seal allegedly sold insurance under false pretense, violating probation

BY JOHN WATERMAN
Staff Writer

Larry Seal, president of the Hancock County School Board, was released Thursday afternoon from the Pearl River County Jail after his attorney filed an injunction in the Pearl River Circuit Court.

Seal had been arrested on Wednesday by the Pearl River County Sheriff's Office on charges of false pretense in connection with the alleged sale of insurance coverage to two individuals.

If found guilty, Seal would also be in violation of his 2001 probation, on which he was placed when he pleaded no contest to eight charges of felony embezzlement in Pearl River County.

Seal was released Thursday on a $10,000 bond. A hearing on the possible revocation of his

As Martin Luther King Jr. Day approaches, two local women recall the day they saw him speak when they marched on ...

THE ROAD TO FREEDOM

It was a day that will live in the memory of the world. About 250,000 people gathered in Washington, D.C. for the March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom. It was the largest political demonstration in the history of the United States. The march was led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and other civil rights leaders. The march was a turning point in the civil rights movement. It was the day that the world saw the power of non-violent resistance. It was the day that the world saw the power of love. It was the day that the world saw the power of freedom.

Sheriff investigating 'kennel' operation in Kiln after complaint

A Hancock County Deputy Sheriff was attacked by a pit bull Friday evening at a Kiln residence, according to Sheriff Steve Garber. He was forced to destroy the animal.

The sheriff's department received a call Friday reporting pit bulls fighting at a Varnado Lane, Kiln residence. Deputies Charles LaFontaine and Mac Besnard responded to the call.

"Upon arriving at the scene, deputies found four dogs fighting, but, were unable to reach them because of other dogs in the yard. Deputy LaFontaine went to his unit to call his supervisor, Lt. Abry Liebig, at this time one of the fighters turned on Besnard and continued towards him even after he fired a shot into the ground alongside the animal, when he was forced to shoot the dog," Garber said.

Ex-caretaker faces charges of exploitation

A Kiln woman was arrested Thursday and charged with the alleged exploitation of a vulnerable adult, Sheriff Steve Garber reports.

Criminal Investigator Matt Barnett said, "Kasey W. Lee, 32, of Kiln, was lodged in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility in lieu of a $5,000 bond for the alleged exploitation of an over 70-year-old man who is in the Biloxi Veterans Home."

pate in the march.

Among that hopeful group were three friends, Rosa Taylor, now 85, Lillian Rogers, now 75, and Roger's sister, Ruby Gillum. Gillum has since passed away. The women were no strangers to the civil rights movement and had participated in freedom marches and other activities in Gulfport, Pascagoula, Hattiesburg, Laurel and Ocean Springs.

"Wherever there was a need we would go to help," said Rogers.

They had been refused admission to a church meeting house in Gulfport because the preacher said he was afraid that those against the movement would burn the church down. The group understood that the fears were real and found another place to meet, said Rogers.

The women, and indeed many of the participants in the largest outcry for social justice that this country has ever seen, had a simple reason for making the long trip to the nation's capital.

"We wanted to be a part of the march that would make things better, not just for blacks, but for everybody," said Rogers.

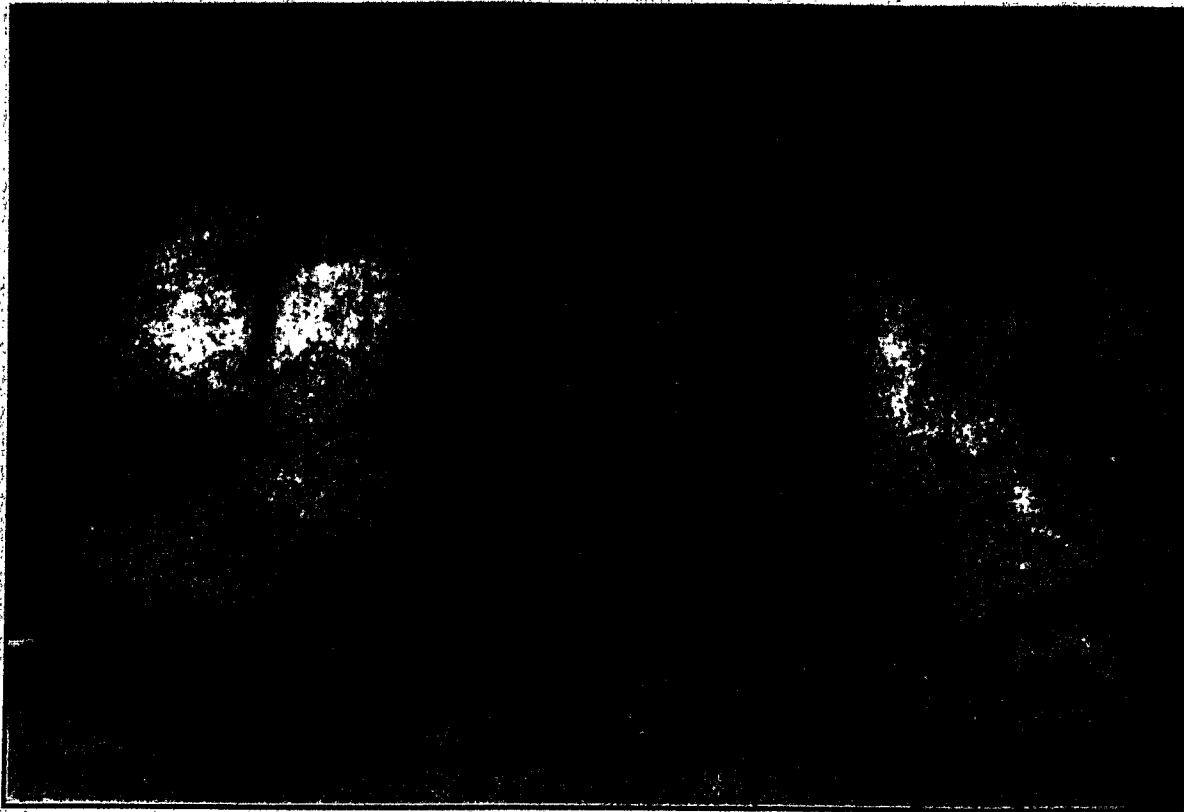

And like many of the participants, the women felt that making things better meant just having a chance. At the time of the event more than a million and a half black Americans were out of work, twice the number of whites that were out of work.

The march was originally dubbed the "March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom" but events earlier in Birmingham and the introduction by Kennedy of the civil rights bill shifted the emphasis to pushing for the passage of the bill.

But the women, like many, were all too familiar with hard times and just wanted the opportunity for a better life for themselves, but more importantly for their children.

"My mother worked for years for $3 a day," said Rogers. "There was lots of sacrifice, but there was lots of love too. I remember my father eating pecans off the trees so we could have what food there was."

"I remember the hard times when you could buy a penny's worth of rice or salt or beans and that was all we had," said Taylor. "But for a nickel you could put together a meal."

For many of their friends, Taylor remembers, the trip was a greater sacrifice. They paid a high price for their dedication to a better future for everyone.

"There were many who lost their jobs and their homes too," said Taylor. Rogers and Taylor were lucky enough to own their own homes, but for those who rented, many found themselves with no where to go when they returned home, the women said.

But for most, the sight of those thousands of people all coming together for the good of all, made the sacrifice worthwhile.

"I remember all those people sitting on the lawn and it made me want to cry," said Taylor. "There were people from everywhere in the world, people from India with long braids down the center of their heads and a man who was a hundred years old."

Later Taylor did cry. "Lord, I cried like a baby because I said 'Lord I've never seen anything like this and I know I never will see anything like this again.' We knew we had the Lord with us and He would protect us."

"I didn't think I'd ever live to see such a thing," said Rogers. "But some people are just for right. It was a learning experience ... I didn't think anything like this would ever happen in my lifetime."

The group traveled to the outskirts of town and walked to the White House, the Pentagon, the housing office, the Washington Monument, and finally to the Lincoln Memorial, where the afternoon's speeches were delivered.

Speakers included then NAACP President Roy Wilkins, John Lewis, Whitney Young and of course Martin Luther King. The only woman to speak was Josephine Baker.

"Many people were standing on the side of the streets watching and many joined in," said Rogers.

A group of young people and children placed a basket on the steps of the memorial.

"It was a symbol that segregation should be dead," said Rogers.

The two stayed at the home of a British couple from Honduras.

Accommodations were arranged by the SCLC and assigned upon the group's arrival. Other organizations provided meals along the way for those traveling to the march. Many marchers walked to Washington from as far as 700 miles away.

Thefts

The animal control officer, Bryan Ladner and Investigator Matt Barnett were then called to the scene.

Control Officer Ladner then took one of the animals that was injured from fighting and on the way to the Waveland Animal Shelter, the animal died of her injuries before reaching the facility, Garber said.

Some 35 pit bulls were found at the 7000 Varnado Lane, Kiln address. It is believed the animals are owned by Rachael Marie Lott and Edwin A. Moran, Jr., Barnett said.

"In the animal warden's checking the area, it was found to be in extremely poor condition. There were pit bull dogs living in mud and water holes without proper fencing and shelter," Garber stated.

Caretaker

"Lee was reported to have been the former caretaker of the man and is alleged to have taken at least $700 from his savings-checking accounts. There may be more moneys involved," Barnett added. The State Attorney General's Office has been involved in the investigation. Also Investigator Tom Roan has assisted Barnett in the investigation.

MARTIN LUTHER KING

Martin Luther King Day Quotes
The following selected quotations are from Martin Luther King, Jr. They give the reader some understanding of the man who this national holiday of the United States of America celebrates. All quotes are from online The Martin Luther King Jr. Papers Project at Stanford University.

Nonviolence
Nonviolence is not a naive commitment to the way of love. Love is not sentimentalism; it is not empty sentimentality. It is the active outpouring of one's whole being into the being of another.
—Martin Luther King, Jr., 1957
I cannot make myself believe that God would let me to hate. I'm tired of violence. I've seen too much of it. I'm not going to let my oppressor dictate to me what method I must use. Our oppressors have used violence. Our oppressors have used hatred. Our oppressors have used rifles and guns. I'm not going to stoop down to their level. We have a power that can't be found in Molotov cocktails.
—Martin Luther King, Jr., 1957

Reconciliation
The method of nonviolence seeks not to humiliate and not to defeat the oppressor, but it seeks to win his friendship and his understanding. And there is no defeat in the aftermath of this method of reconciliation.
—Martin Luther King, Jr., 1955
Love is creative and redemptive. Love builds up and unites; hate tears down and destroys. The aftermath of the fight with fire method which you suggest is bitterness and chaos; the aftermath of the love method is reconciliation and creation of the beloved community. Physical force can repress, restrain, coerce, destroy, but it cannot create and organize anything permanent; only love can do that.
—Martin Luther King, Jr., 1957

Social Justice
I must confess that I have enjoyed being on this mountaintop and I am tempted to want to stay here and retreat to a more quiet and serene life. But something within reminds me that the valley calls me in spite of all its agonies, dangers, and frustrating moments. I must return to the valley. Something tells me that the ultimate test of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort or moments of challenge and moments of glory.

Picayune man charged in over 110 thefts after tri-county spree

Hancock Sheriff's Dept. working with Pearl River, Harrison counties

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus
A Picayune resident was arrested for felony possession of a stolen vehicle following a chase from Gulfport to D'Iberville, where he crashed into a vehicle driven by Harrison Coroner Harry Hargrove on Dec. 5, 2004. This has led to the suspect being charged with more than 110 thefts in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River Counties, according to a release from Harrison County Police Chief George Payne, Jr.

Hancock Investigator Matt Barnett said, "Steven Miller, 33, of Picayune, is allegedly charged with over 30 crimes to include petit larceny, grand larceny and burglary, in Hancock County."

"This case is still under investigation and other burglaries and thefts charges may be forthcoming," Barnett added.

The news release also said following a lengthy investigation, Miller has been allegedly charged with 20 crimes in Harrison and 61 similar crimes in Pearl River Counties. Also several crimes in the cities of Gulfport and Biloxi.

"Following the pursuit which was initiated in Gulfport, Miller was taken to Gulfport Police Department where it was learned the vehicle Miller had in his possession was stolen from St. Tammany Parish. It was during the lengthy investigation that Miller provided information about crimes he had committed in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River Counties," authorities said.

Investigators from the three counties have been working together on the case since the accident and issued their report on Friday. Miller is lodged with no bond in the Harrison County Adult Detention Center, Barnett reported.

Some of the stolen items have been recovered and returned to the owners, according to Barnett.

Barnett did say, "Many of the thefts and burglaries have not been reported to authorities. Law enforcement agencies in each county had to notify many of the victims in the crime spree. This did cause officers somewhat of a problem in returning their merchandise."

"Victims of crimes need to report them to their respective law enforcement agencies when they occur," Barnett added.

All of the crimes are reported to have taken place during the month of November and first week of December 2004.

Investigators Andre Pizer and John Luther assisted Barnett in the Hancock investigation.

Sheriff seeking three suspects

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The Hancock County Sheriff's office is seeking the identity of three suspects wanted in connection with crimes which have occurred in the north end of the county, Sheriff Steve Garber reports.

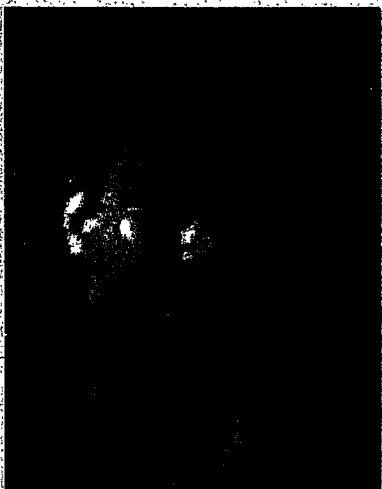

The first two suspects had been seen together in the vicinity of a business in the Caesar-Necaise area, during the time frame it was burglarized on November 15, 2004, Investigator said.

The first individual with a goatee, has an unknown tattoo located on the right side of his neck.

The second subject had at least 2 (two) earring loops attached to his left ear.

These suspects were driving a maroon, 4-door Toyota or Nissan, with a missing front passenger's side hubcap.

The third suspect has been seen at the business on numerous occasions between October 3, and October 27, 2004.

Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber is seeking these three men in connection with a string of burglaries and break-ins.

This individual is a light-skinned black male, late twenties or early thirties, Luther reported.

The suspect has been seen in different vehicles. In October he was driving an older model two-tone, blue with a gray stripe across the bottom, GMC S.U.V.

The subject wanted was a passenger in Dec. 23, in an older model, shell GMC Pick Up. That vehicle has a blue cab, with a dark colored, possible black cargo bed, and a dent to its front, passenger's side fender.

The sheriff's office is asking for any information possible on the identification of the three suspects, Luther said.

Garber emphasizes that all information will be kept confidential. The sheriff's office can be reached at 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555 (Picayune exchange).

You won't want to miss Chamber After Hours

This is a reminder for folks to make note of Thursday, Jan. 19, as the first 2005 Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours.

This month's sponsor is Coastal Rehabilitation, 547 St. John Street, Bay St. Louis.

The hours are from 5 to 7 p.m. and I have been told there will be some good snacks and refreshments.

In case you are new to the area, St. John Street is one block west of Main Street. You can enter St. John from U.S. Highway 90 at Breath's Boats & Motors, or Old Spanish Trail by the Telephone Company's building.

If you have not meet all of the chamber's new officers and board members, this would be a good time to make their acquaintance, as many of them will be there. As always, the After Hours are for chamber members and guests and are held on a monthly basis and has different sponsors throughout the year.

I hope to see you at the After Hours Thursday.

The Krewe of Diamondhead is gearing up for its annual Mardi Gras parade scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 5.

This year's theme is Diamondhead Goes to Disney and the parade begins at noon at the Diamondhead Community Center and ends at the Country Club.

Anyone interested in entering a unit in the Diamondhead parade should call Parade Lieutenant Ray Sheehy at 255-6922 for an application.

The Diamondhead parade is one in which many folks view each year, as there is so many very good viewing sites along the route.

There are usually a large number of units and the parade seems to grow each year in participation and attendance.

Pearl River Community College continues to make headlines in the world of Community College sports.

The American Community College Football Coaches Association has named Tim Hatten of Pearl River Community College as their Coach of the Year for 2004.

As many of you know, PRC had a 12-0 record in 2004, took home the Mississippi Association Community/Junior College title and the school's first National Junior College Athletic Association championship since 1961.

One of the great things about Coach Hatten is the fact that he was a two-year letter winner for PRC in 1983 and 1984.

Congratulations of all kinds goes to Coach Hatten, his coaching staff, and entire football squad in addition to Pearl River Community College too.

MS in good shape for the shape it's in

BY REPS. SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE J.P. COMPRETTE and JESSICA UPshaw

The first major deadline for members of the House of Representatives and the Legislature loomed for us on Monday, Jan. 17 -- for the introduction of bills to be considered during the 2005 session.

That date marks the beginning of the third week of the 90-day session that began Jan. 4 and is scheduled to conclude on Sunday, April 3.

Work on the issues facing this year's Legislature -- particularly the tighter-than-ever fiscal 2006 budget that begins July 1 of this year -- has already begun, but will be put on a faster pace in the weeks ahead as the deadlines that guide our work are more prominent and arrive quicker.

Hundreds of bills by individual members of the House and Senate have already been introduced and assigned to the committees of both chambers. Many of these committees held preliminary meetings in the first two weeks, but will now begin considering bills in earnest.

The first measure of the session to be sent to Gov.

Barbour for his signature was SB 2325 to provide $2.3 million to the State Veterans Affairs Board for the current FY 2005. These additional funds will go to defray expenses at the state's three veterans nursing homes located in Jackson, Collins and Kosciusko. The House approved the measure on Jan. 13 and Gov. Barbour is expected to sign it immediately.

Another major event during the second week came when Gov. Barbour delivered his annual "State of the State" address to a joint assembly of the House and Senate in the House chamber. In opening his remarks, the governor praised House Speaker Billy McCoy and Lt. Gov. Amy Tuck for their recovery from illnesses they suffered last year. "Your being here tonight is the answer to many prayers," he said.

Gov. Barbour declared the "state of the state" to be "better today than it was last year, but not as good as it will be this time next year." He said more jobs were created in 2004 than in any year since 1999 with a net increase of 10,000, including a rise in vital manufacturing positions.

Making Democracy work better for you

BY CORY D. MALEY

With the 109th Congress in session and President Bush working on his second term, many Americans are jubilant about the red surge across America, yet just as many are in the doldrums, feeling as though the worst-case scenario for our country has been brought to life.

We are a divided nation in many ways, perhaps more so than we have been in decades, but there is one thing, sadly, that most Americans do agree on.

According to a 19 March 2004 Harris Poll which asks the question "Who has too much or too little power & influence in Washington?" Americans declared overwhelmingly that big companies and PACs which make financial contributions to politicians have "too much" power and influence. In Washington, with 83% an 81% responding, respectively. Conversely, of those polled 72% said that public opinion had "too little." This overt agreement is astounding, but it is also enormously disturbing. The problem is how can average citizens like us tackle the system's shortcomings if we're up against not only the government, but also the goliath power of big business and special interests? This arrangement often seem far too daunting to most people and so they say "screw it," and they do nothing. Gandhi, in all his wisdom, told us that "whatever you do may seem insignificant, but it is most important that you do it." Doing something is more effective than doing nothing.

The people of the Ukraine have shown us over the last two months that the people really are powerful if they begin to act together. Yet, I do understand that people do not know where to start, and so I am offering you a simple beginner's guide for making democracy work for you.

Gautier sweeps SSC in soccer

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Gautier Gators took the inside track to the Division 8-4A soccer title with a 4-2 win over St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis on Friday, January 14th.

The top two teams will advance to the South State playoffs that begin on January 25th. Presently, the Rock-a-chaws are in second place in the division.

The win on Friday evening gives Gautier the series sweep in division action; however, SSC (12-3) did defeat the Gators during the Harrison Central Red Rebel Holiday Classic during the Christmas break.

SSC head coach Andy Kivlan stated, "I am very proud of our players and the way that they played tonight. They knew what the stakes were and they kept fighting until the end. We made some mistakes during the game. And, if you make mistakes against a good team they will make you pay for it. Our guys played their hearts out tonight but things just did not fall our way."

Gautier took a 1-0 lead at halftime behind Brock Gaubert's goal.

About nine minutes into the second half Se. Choi tied the game at 1-1 for SSC with his first goal. And, less than a minute later, Choi was in the right spot after the Gautier goalie lost control of a shot. Choi hit a rebound shot into the net for a 2-1 lead.

The Gators needed only about two minutes to tie the game 2-2 with Jake Jones' shot. With about 15 minutes remaining, Jones recorded his second goal of the game to put the Gators up 3-2.

Josh Burnard rounded out the scoring for Gautier with his penalty kick to put the Gators ahead 4-2.

SSC has three regular season games remaining starting with Oak Grove on Monday, January 17th. The Rocks will host Bay High on Tuesday and travel to Pass Christian on Friday. The South State playoffs begin on Tuesday, January 25th. SSC and Gautier could meet again in the South State championship on February 1st.

On Tuesday, January 11th, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws blanked Vancleave with a 9-0 shutout at the Brother Phillip Memorial Athletic Complex.

Austin Boudreaux and Se Choi each scored twice while Patrick Donohoe, Jimmy Headley, Kody Cannon, Wynne Taylor and Austin Ladner all adding one goal each.

The Rocks led 5-0 at half-time.

SSC head coach Andy Kivlan stated, "This was a good effort by the players. I can see where Vancleave is going to get better. Their players and coaches work very hard. We were able to play a lot of the younger guys tonight and get them some needed game experience."

The Bay High Tigers dropped two games with Gautier at home on Tuesday night. The Lady Gators defeated the Lady Tigers 5-1 in high school girls soccer action. The lone goal for the Bay High girls was scored by Hannah Johnson. The goal also marked the first goal surrendered by the Lady Gators this season.

In the varsity boys game, the contest was tight one with Gautier taking a 1-0 lead at halftime.

However, in the second half, Gautier got untracked with three goals to make the final score 4-0.

The Our Lady Academy Crescents (11-4-2) traveled to West Monroe, Louisiana, last weekend for a pair of games in high school girls soccer.

The Crescents defeated Byrd High School of Shreveport 2-0 behind Lauren Renz' two goals. Lauren Rittiner and Ellie Dauterive each tallied an assist in the game. Sarah Loiacano led the defensive charge to help Annie Giardino record the shutout in goal.

On Saturday, OLA defeated the host team West Monroe 3-0. Lauren Rittiner scored twice and Meghan Flynt added one goal in the win.

Flynt, Renz and Dauterive each tallied an assist in the game. In this game, Megan Bagwell led the defensive charge in front of Annie Giardino who recorded the shutout in goal.

On January 5th, the OLA junior high soccer team tied Ocean Springs 2-2. Nikki Wild and Jennifer Loiacano each scored while Caitlin Church added an assist. The junior high record is now 4-0-3 with their next game against Long Beach on January 12th.

The Bay High Lady Tigers (5-5) recorded a division win in high school girls soccer on January 5th with their 7-3 decision over the Pass Christian Lady Pirates.

Rocks 'rebound' for 44-33 win over Pass

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Pass Christian Pirates hosted the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws in Division 8-4A action on Friday night. It was a classic battle of size versus speed. And, size won this battle.

The Rocks (17-4; 7-0) bounced back from a 24-20 deficit at halftime to win the key division game 44-33. The win can be credited to the defensive effort of SSC and the hot hand of Derrick Willis.

SSC used the front line of Ramsey Shawa, Ludovic Dovonu, Mike Rice and Owen McNally to win the rebounding war while Willis' 10 points in the second half sparked the Rock offense.

SSC head coach Jay Ladner stated, "Defense and rebounding keep us in games and give us a chance to be successful. We talked about continuing to work hard on defense at halftime. The team gave a solid defensive effort in the second half and it gave us chances to take control of the game."

The Rocks defensive effort in the second half allowed only nine points from Pass Christian. The win marked the 16th time this season that SSC has held a team to less than 40 points. The Rocks jumped out to a 14-9 lead after the first period.

However, in the second period the Pirates (11-6, 4-2) came alive and took the lead at halftime 24-20. The Pirates ended the first half of play with an 8-0 run that was keyed by a technical foul.

In the second half, Pass' Brandon Miller put the Pirates up 26-20 with a basket in the paint. A basket by McNally and consecutive treys by Willis put the Rocks up 28-26 for good. Willis' third trey of the game came with less than a minute to play in the third period as the Rocks ended the frame with a 33-30 lead.

SSC held the Pirates to just three points in the final period en route to the win. SSC was led by Mike Rice with 11 points and 9 rebounds while Willis had 10 points, 4 rebounds and 2 assists. Ramsey Shaw added 9 points and 5 boards. Brandon Miller led Pass Christian with 10 points followed by Reggie McIntosh with 6 points.

In earlier basketball action on Tuesday, January 11th the Bay High Tigers traveled to Biloxi to tangle with the Indians. The #1-ranked Lady Tigers disposed of the Lady Indians 68-24 while Biloxi tallied a 71-44 win in varsity boys action.

The Lady Tigers (18-0) led 14-4 after the first period but ripped off 18 unanswered points in the second period after Biloxi cut into the Bay High lead. The Lady Tigers enjoyed a 38-12 lead at intermission. Bay High was paced by Destiny Porter's 25 points followed by Kendra Reed's 22 points.

In the boys game, the Indians were led by JeJuan Brown's 18 points, 10 rebounds and 8 blocks. Biloxi enjoyed a 34-22 lead at the break. Braxton Rockwell led Bay High with 12 points.

Also on Tuesday evening, the Hancock Lady Hawks (16-5, 3-0) held on for a slim 45-42 win against the Lady Maroon Tide of Picayune (15-5, 1-1) on the road.

Ashley Boehnel, a USM signee, scored 19 points and 6 rebounds to lead Hancock. She sank the final two free throws with :08 left to play to seal the win.

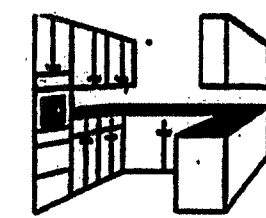

The Lady Hawks enjoyed a 25-19 halftime advantage before Picayune battled back in the third period to take the lead 34-32 heading into the final frame.

The Rocks defeated East Central Tuesday night on the road 69-20. Mike Rice scored 19 points in the win followed by Brandon Butler with 12 points.

The Pirates defeated Gautier 71-62 in Division 8-4A action. Brandon Miller tallied a double-double with 23 points and 13 rebounds in the win. Reggie followed by Armad Bailey McIntosh added 18 points with 13 points.

Jason Shepetis was a miracle child

BY BENNIE
SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Three year old Jason Shepetis loved to look at the lights on his family's Christmas tree. He also loved the lighted play aquarium that sat on a dresser in his room, and listening to drumming sounds on his sound board.

Not the usual activities for what should have been an active toddler. But Jason Shepetis was no ordinary child. Within 24 hours of his birth, Jason had contracted a rare and particularly virulent form of plesiomonas shigelloides meningitis, a bacteria that literally ate his brain, leaving him with nothing but the brain stem. His parents were told that they should go home and make funeral arrangements, that their child would never have a life.

But Jason fooled everyone.

He survived and brought joy to his family, mother Kammy, father Jon, brother Danny, sister Margianne, and devoted caretaker Althea Vontoure, for more than three years. He learned; he responded; he made his need known; he loved. Those who loved him saw the little miracles.

On Wednesday evening, just before midnight, Jason passed away. But his death, which will be mourned by his family and the many, many people who had learned to love him, will bring life to others. Jason was an organ donor.

Hopefully, too, his story will be passed on and bring hope to the hundreds of other families around the world learning to live with the reality of a child like Jason.

The family gained support and gave support to many families like themselves and learned to concentrate on the little miracles each day.

As his mother Kammy said, "In many ways Jason was the perfect child. He just gave and received love." He will be missed.

State tourism group honors legislators

The Mississippi Tourism Association (MTA) presented their 2004 "Legislative Friends of Tourism" award to Representative Diane Peranich, Chairwoman of the House Tourism Committee (D-Pass Christian), and Senator Tommy Robertson, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee (R-Jackson), for their diligence and leadership in promoting and further developing film production through the Miss. Film Incentives Act (MFIA). The awards were presented at MTA's annual Legislative Luncheon held Jan. 12 at the Marriott Hotel in downtown Jackson.

Representative Peranich and Senator Robertson certainly deserve this recognition. With their leadership the Mississippi Legislature passed the Act on its first year of introduction, a notable accomplishment," said MTA president Walter Tipton of Natchez. "This legislation will allow us to be very competitive with other states and countries in terms of luring this lucrative business to Mississippi."

"We know that passing legislation is a true team effort," said Beau Whittington, of Jackson, Vice President of Legislative Affairs for MTA. "We thank each of you, all members of the legislature, for your vote supporting this project and supporting tourism as a whole in Mississippi."

The MFIA, introduced and passed into legislation during 2004, is an economic development tool that will encourage film making throughout Miss. The Act will help the state attract the entertainment industry, build a crew base, support Miss. filmmakers and showcase the state's talent and location. The MFIA does not rely on any appropriated monies from the state, and it rebates back to the production company only after they have spent money in Miss.

"Mississippi is already competitive with other states' locations by virtue of our pristine settings, our people and our previous experiences with such big titles as 'Oh Brother Where Art Thou' and 'A Time to Kill,'" said Whittington. "Passing this legislation will help us stay ahead of the game."

Aubrey Miller, the Director of Tourism and Travel for Southern Living Magazine, delivered the keynote address at the luncheon.

Miller highlighted the advantages Miss. has in its tourism efforts. He noted that Miss. is a wonderful drive market during a time when many travelers are avoiding flying and that the state is committed to preserving and marketing scenic by-ways. He also praised the state's leadership at the state level and stated, most importantly, that Miss. has a government that values tourism.

"Mississippi must continue to take advantage of the growing tourism industry," said Miller. "I have followed Mississippi tourism for years, and the progress the industry has made has been dramatic. The Mississippi Division of Tourism and its extremely professional staff are dedicated to their role of interaction with local CVBs.

They do a wonderful job of getting programs from the state to the local level for implementation that furthers local tourism development."

Last year, tourists spent over $6.1 billion inside the state, and there were an estimated 92,400 direct tourism jobs in Mississippi. In addition, payroll income from tourism employees amounted to some $1.7 billion last year and produced $471 million in state tax revenues and $152 million in city/county tourism tax revenues.

Diluted earnings per share for 2004 were $1.87, compared to $1.64 for 2003, resulting in an increase of $0.23 per share, or 14 percent.

Net income for the fourth quarter of 2004 was $15.79 million and diluted earnings per share were $0.46. Compared to the fourth quarter of 2003, net income was $543,000, or 4 percent, higher, while diluted earnings per share were $0.02, or 4 percent, higher. Compared to the third quarter of 2004, net income was $395,000, or 3 percent, higher, while diluted earnings per share were $0.01, or 2 percent, higher.

The Company increased the quarterly per share common dividend twice during 2004. The quarterly per share common dividend now stands at $0.165 per share. Hancock Holding Company President Leo W. Seal, Jr. commented, "We are pleased to have increased the quarterly per share common dividend by $0.05 per share, or 43 percent, during 2004."

There were no common stock repurchases during the fourth quarter of 2004, however, the total number of shares repurchased for the year ended December 31, 2004 was 236,034 shares.

In commenting on Hancock's operating results for 2004, George A. Schloegel, Chief Executive Officer, stated, "It is with great pride that I join my fellow associates at Hancock Holding Company in reporting another year of record earnings. While we are delighted with the 12 percent increase in earnings over 2003, we are also committed to continuing the established legacy of strength, stability and integrity, while also working to provide superior returns to our shareholders."

Peoples Financial

Corporation (NASDAQ Small Cap: PFBX), parent of The Peoples Bank, reported net income for 2004 totaled $5,794,000, an increase of 15% over 2003 earnings.

Earnings per share totaled $1.04 per common share for 2004, an increase of 16% over 2003. Earnings per share are based on weighted average shares outstanding of 5,556,251 and 5,563,015 at December, 2004 and 2003, respectively. Net income for the fourth quarter of 2004 totaled $1,310,000, down 5% from the same period a year earlier. The decrease in quarterly earnings was attributed to a loss on long-term securities sold by the bank.

"Overall, our financial performance in 2004 was the best since 1999," said Chevis C. Swetman, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the holding company and the bank.

"We sacrificed some short-term earnings during the quarter to provide liquidity to make more loans and maximize earnings going forward," he said. "Our loan volume increased 12% for the entire year, an indication The Peoples Bank is growing faster than the overall Gulf Coast economy, which is enjoying a surge of growth," added Swetman.

The board increased the semi-annual dividend on common stock twice during 2004, now at a current level of $1.18 per share to shareholders of record January 10, 2005. The dividend has been raised six times since 2000.

Jason Shepetis was a miracle child

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Three year old Jason Shepetis loved to look at the lights on his family's Christmas tree. He also loved the lighted play aquarium that sat on a dresser in his room, and listening to drumming sounds on his sound board.

Not the usual activities for what should have been an active toddler. But Jason Shepetis was no ordinary child. Within 24 hours of his birth, Jason had contracted a rare and particularly virulent form of plesiomonas shigelloides meningitis, a bacteria that literally ate his brain, leaving him with nothing but the brain stem. His parents were told that they should go home and make funeral arrangements, that their child would never have a life.

But Jason fooled everyone.

He survived and brought joy to his family, mother Kammy, father Jon, brother Danny, sister Margianne, and devoted caretaker Althea Vontoure, for more than three years. He learned; he responded; he made his need known; he loved. Those who loved him saw the little miracles.

Jason Shepetis

On Wednesday evening, just before midnight, Jason passed away. But his death, which will be mourned by his family and the many, many people who had learned to love him, will bring life to others. Jason was an organ donor.

Hopefully, too, his story will be passed on and bring hope to the hundreds of other families around the world learning to live with the reality of a child like Jason.

The family gained support and gave support to many families like themselves and learned to concentrate on the little miracles each day.

As his mother Kammy said, "In many ways Jason was the perfect child. He just gave and received love." He will be missed.

State tourism group honors legislators

The Mississippi Tourism Association (MTA) presented their 2004 "Legislative Friends of Tourism" award to Representative Diane Peranich, Chairwoman of the House Tourism Committee (D-Pass Christian), and Senator Tommy Robertson, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee (R-Jackson), for their diligence and leadership in promoting and further developing film production through the Miss. Film Incentives Act (MFIA). The awards were presented at MTA's annual Legislative Luncheon held Jan. 12 at the Marriott Hotel in downtown Jackson.

"Representative Peranich and Senator Robertson certainly deserve this recognition. With their leadership the Mississippi Legislature passed the Act on its first year of introduction, a notable accomplishment," said MTA president Walter Tipton of Natchez. "This legislation will allow us to be very competitive with other states and countries in terms of luring this lucrative business to Mississippi."

"We know that passing legislation is a true team effort," said Beau Whittington, of Jackson, Vice President of Legislative Affairs for MTA. "We thank each of you, all members of the legislature, for your vote supporting this

The MFIA, introduced and passed into legislation during 2004, is an economic development tool that will encourage film making throughout Miss. The Act will help the state attract the entertainment industry, build a crew base, support Miss. filmmakers and showcase the state's talent and location. The MFIA does not rely on any appropriated monies from the state, and it rebates back to the production company only after they have spent money in Miss.

"Mississippi is already competitive with other states' locations by virtue of our pristine settings, our people and our previous experiences with such big titles as 'Oh Brother Where Art Thou' and 'A Time To Kill,'" said Whittington. "Passing this legislation will help us stay ahead of the game."

Aubrey Miller, the Director of Tourism and Travel for Southern Living Magazine, delivered the keynote address at the luncheon.

Miller highlighted the advantages Miss. has in its tourism efforts. He noted that Miss. is a wonderful drive market during a time when many travelers are avoiding flying and that the state is committed to preserving and marketing scenic by-ways. He also praised the state's leadership at the state level and stated, most importantly, that Miss. has a government that values tourism.

"Mississippi must continue to take advantage of the growing tourism industry," said Miller. "I have followed Mississippi tourism for years, and the progress the industry has made has been dramatic. The Mississippi Division of Tourism and its extremely professional staff are dedicated to their role of interaction with local CVBs.

They do a wonderful job of getting programs from the state to the local level for implementation that furthers local tourism development."

Last year, tourists spent over $6.1 billion inside the state, and there were an estimated 92,400 direct tourism jobs in Mississippi. In addition, payroll income from tourism employees amounted to some $1.7 billion last year and produced $471 million in state tax revenues and $152 million in city/county tourism tax revenues.

Democracy -- make it work

that kind of work into contacting your reps, they feel the least they can do is listen. It really is effective (this comes straight from the horses' mouths). Your letter should have three parts to it: 1) Who are you, tell them a little about who you are and that you are a constituent in their district. 2) Be very clear what your goal or grievance is. 3) Explain to them what you expect them to do about it. Be courteous and kind, they want to be treated with the same respect and dignity you do.

III. Join a Grassroots or Watchdog Organization

Watchdog Organizations "watch" over those in positions of power, whether it be big business, the government, the media, or any other institutions that may need to be looked over with a watchful eye. This can help alert us to the actions of our representatives, or alert us to the fact that our representatives may not know what is going on. To take it a step further, join one of the hundreds, if not thousands, of grassroots organizations that care about the very same issues that you do. They have already set up the mechanisms for change, but often need willing participants to drive those machines. Grassroots, or bottom up, movements are responsible for effecting the most long-lasting change in this country.

IV. Start Your Own Postcard Campaign

A postcard campaign can be very effective. Get a bunch of cards made up at any store that makes copies. On one side, put the highlights of the issue you are concerned about and what you want those representatives to do about it. Then take them around the neighborhood and get others to write a little bit about why they care about the issue on the back of the card.

Address them, stamp them, and send them off to your representative. Make sure to collect the postcards and mail them yourself, otherwise, you can bet most will end up in the recycling or trash. You can even ask people to contribute a quarter to cover the cost of the 23 cent stamp and the paper it's printed on.

V. Send a Message To Representatives That Does Not "Represent" You. When you vote against a candidate, are about to, or are tempted to, make sure they know why you are not, or are no longer, supporting them. Politicians change their political stripes when it is in their best interest. If politicians realize that there are certain things their constituents will not tolerate from them, they will often fall into line. Remember what your folks always told you about the squeaky wheel?

I am often reminded of the quote by Alexander Woolcott who lamented "I'm tired of hearing it said that democracy doesn't work. Of course it doesn't work. We are supposed to work it." People have enormous power to affect political change, if only we would realize that we have the tools to do so. You now have some very simple but effective tools, so go forth and help to build the foundations for a stronger, more democratic America.

State

He credited the Legislature for its passage of a major workforce development overhaul program. He also mentioned that an announcement could come soon on a large industrial development project somewhere in the state.

The governor talked much about his public education plans and said he backed fully funding the 6 percent across-the-board pay raise that is a priority of the Legislature. However, he said that in future years, he favors a pay-for-performance plan of increasing teachers' salaries, and said he supports freeing up local schools that are doing well from the shackles of state bureaucracy. He said that would give the State Department of Education more time to help poor-performing schools.

During week two, many members of the House also participated in a Capitol rally sponsored by the Coalition on Children and Public Education, which is pushing for full funding of the Mississippi Adequate Education Program. More than 115,000 signatures of supporters from across the state were presented to members of the Legislature at the rally headed by former Gov. William Winter and longtime public education backer Jack Reed.

Gov. Barbour also stressed public safety in his address, saying penalties should be strengthened on adults who manufacture illegal drugs while children are present.

He also said he supports a new 50-person trooper school to beef up the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

He also praised the thousands of Mississippians who are serving in Iraq and reminded his audience that the state's largest deployment yet, the 3,500-soldier 155th Brigade Combat Unit with members from all over Mississippi, has just arrived in harm's way in Kuwait on the way to the battle zone.

Seal

probation is tentatively scheduled for the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 21, according to Buddy McDonald, district attorney for Pearl River County.

Seal was recently elected to the position of president of the Hancock County School Board. He declined comment, and his attorney, Glenn White, was also unavailable due to surgery.

Superintendent David Kopf said he was dismayed at the problem.

"We're very disappointed over the entire incident," he said.

Peggy Ladner, board member from district four, and the previous board president said she was sorry for the negative publicity the charges could bring the Hancock County School District.

"I think it's very unfortunate that the district is subject to it," she said.

At this point, it is not known what Seal's future standing with the board will be.

"That will be something that the board will have to address," Kopf said. "I'm sure they'll look at the facts, and once they find out what the facts are, they'll operate from that platform."

"I would hope that (Seal's) conscience would be his guide," Ladner said.

The Mississippi Department of Insurance assisted the sheriff's office in the investigation. Lee Harrell, deputy commissioner, said his office was very concerned that customers of the Seal Insurance Agency may not have had the coverage they thought they did.

"We're working to ensure that the citizens down there are protected and that they get what they paid for," Harrell said.

Seal surrendered his license in 1997, but his wife Michelle retained her license until May of 2004.

"The agency didn't have a license," Harrell said. "The corporation was dissolved by the Secretary of State's office. The Seals could not operate an insurance firm in the state of Mississippi."

A cease-and-desist order was also placed on the offices of Seal Insurance Agency. MDOI is still investigating the case, but Harrell said that what his department could do by itself was limited.

"If they don't pay the fine, (the Seals) don't have a license to revoke."

Harrell advised anyone who purchased insurance from the agency to call their insurance company listed on their policy to verify coverage. If they do not have the coverage they purchased, they can contact the insurance commissioner's office at 1-800-562-2957.

After the Battle of the Bay

Battle of New Orleans, an oil on canvas painted by Dennis Malone Carter, reprinted here with permission from the Historic New Orleans Collection. For more information, contact the HNOC at 504-598-7171 or www.hnoc.com.

The Battle of New Orleans: 190 years ago

In late 1814 and early 1815, battles were fought in Mississippi waters and on Louisiana land that ended the War of 1812. These battles were important in that they established the United States as an equal to any of the world powers of that day. They culminated with the Chalmette action of 8 January. Many of you have read about the Battles of the Bay St. Louis and St. Joe's Pass. Here, adapted liberally from my book, Sink or Be Sunk, are the final actions at Chalmette of a series of actions began a month earlier in the Bay of St. Louis.

THE FIRST ENCOUNTER,

23 DECEMBER 1814

At 1:30 in the afternoon of 23 December 1814, General Andrew Jackson was interrupted in his office by three excited visitors that cried out in French and English that British troops had landed about ten miles south of the city and at that moment were occupying Villere Plantation.

Jackson is reported to have reacted by striking his fist on his desk and exclaiming, "By the eternal, they shall not sleep on our soil!"

Calling to his aides, he said, "Gentlemen, the British are below, we must fight them tonight."

What followed was quintessential Jackson, immediate fast and decisive action. Within hours, almost 2000 troops were moving south toward Villere Plantation, not to defend the city, but to attack the British troops.

The American force was a broad mixture of men and arms: local volunteer militia, free men of color, Indians, all armed with a varied assortment of muskets and rifles and finally, Jackson's Tennesseans, experienced hardened regular army armed with long, sharp-shooting rifles. Their experienced use of these rifles would play a crucial role in the battles that lay ahead.

To complete all this, there was Naval Commandant Patterson's two-ship navy, Carolina with 14 guns and the larger Louisiana with 16 heavier guns. There was no wind that day and it was Carolina that moved down river using long sweeps.

Carolina had an interesting crew. A week or so earlier, Patterson had found that he did not have enough seamen to man the two ships and had a sweep made of the river water-front. This not only produced the needed men, but, ironically, included Barratarian refugees. A few months earlier, Patterson had destroyed Lafitte's privateer camp using this same Carolina. Patterson, however, was glad to have the former Barratarian privateers aboard Carolina, especially those who were experienced gunners.

Jackson asked Patterson to bring Carolina down river opposite the British encampment so as to open fire at 7:30 that evening. Jackson believed he would have his ground forces in place to attack by then and the firing of Carolina's guns would be the signal to begin the land assault.

Carolina dropped down river, but because of the swift Mississippi current, arrived opposite the British camp hours much earlier than planned. The vessel anchored near the west bank and Patterson and his men calmly waited for the time of attack.

The British troops assumed the anchored Carolina was a merchant ship and went about the business of establishing camp, building fires and preparing their evening meals. It was a quiet evening and several of the British troops even walked out on the levee to view the ship and wave at its crew.

That evening, in complete darkness and on schedule, Carolina opened fire directly into the British encampment. The surprise was devastating and the heavy guns, firing so close in the darkness, created chaos. The British tried to return fire with some small artillery, but the range was too great. For ten long minutes, essentially unopposed, Carolina poured ball and grape on the British camp.

After waiting these ten minutes for Carolina's gun to have an effect as well as to distract the British, Jackson launched his ground attack. At the start it was a continuation of the original confusion, a melee of thrusts and counter thrusts in the dark that initially favored Jackson's attackers. But slowly as time wore on, the strong, field experienced discipline of the British allowed them to force the American attackers to withdraw.

All told, the two-hour battle resulted in a British casualty list of 46 killed, 167 wounded and 64 missing. American casualties were 24 killed, 115 wounded and 74 missing.

But these figures do not tell the real story. Jackson's mixed force of inexperienced militia and backwoods infantry had fought with battle-hardened British troops in hand-to-hand combat and had stood their ground, surprising the British as to their willingness and evident ability to fight.

But more importantly, the British advance group had been found. Jackson was no longer unaware of where the British were going to attack; he now knew it was here and he had stopped them cold; stopped them in a difficult-for-them-to-attack, easy-for-him-to-defend field position. The entire defense of New Orleans would from now on be fought on this narrow strip of ground.

Jackson fell back to a position two miles north of the British forces and over the next few days built an earthen rampart behind an old millrace called Rodriguez Canal. This bulwark had a height of about eight feet and had artillery pieces positioned at strategic intervals behind it.

Intermittently during this construction, Carolina would drop down on the British encampment and let go with its cannon. It was often joined in this by the more heavily gunned Louisiana. The two vessels continued their harassing fire day after day, hurling shot deep into the enemy's flank.

During all this, General Keane, leader of the slightly less than 2000-man

British advance group, became convinced that a strong, superior force of well-armed troops was just a short distance from his position and decided to wait until more troops could join him.

The British troops dug in. It was cold and it rained intermittently. The food from the plantation quickly ran out and the supplies from the fleet were slow and insufficient. They sat and waited as the Carolina, and sometimes Louisiana, dropped down to visit each day.

As the British troops waited for reinforcements in their cold, miserable bivouac and the Americans sweated to build their dirt rampart behind the Rodriguez Canal, American and British representatives sat down in Ghent, Belgium and ceremoniously signed a peace treaty on 24 December 1814.

***

On the morning of 25 December 1814, the American defenders heard a commotion erupt in the British camp. Salvoes were fired in the air and there was continuous loud cheering. The British were enthusiastically greeting their newly arrived commander, Sir Edward Michael Pakenham. Pakenham had brought with him three thousand additional soldiers and more were coming. To the British rank and file, it meant that a solid direction might at last be given to their, heretofore, confused efforts.

Pakenham's tour of the battlefield resulted in the same assessment that every field commander has made since gunpowder has been invented: more artillery was needed. With Herculean effort, five heavy navy guns were rowed 60 miles from the fleet anchorage at Cat Island, manhandled up Bayou Bienvenue and, under cover of darkness, dragged to prepared field positions. In the shelter of the levee, gunners began heating round shot in small ovens.

On the morning of 27 December, the British opened fire, hurling red-hot shot on the newly anchored Carolina. The current coming down the river that day was too strong to move the vessel and Carolina was forced to bear the brunt of the fiery cannonade.

Carolina traded shot for shot for almost an hour; however, she could not take the hot balls hitting her wooden deck. One lodged in her superstructure and began a persistent fire. When Carolina's crew finally abandoned her and she blew up, loud cheering erupted from the British troops.

Of the two American vessels, Louisiana was the more formidable with its heavier and more numerous guns and Patterson opted to keep her from the same fate as Carolina. He had the Louisiana anchored beside Rodriguez Canal so that her large guns now formed a river extension of Jackson's line. This was shown to be a formidable addition the following day, 28 December, when the British, making a frontal assault on the American line, suffered massive enfilading fire from Louisiana's guns.

StenniSphere Astro Camp to explore moon missions

THE SEA COAST ECHO

What better way for children to have fun and keep learning than to go on a one-day space mission? StenniSphere's next Astro Camp Saturday, themed "Trading Spaces: From Earth to the Moon," blasts off Feb. 12, 2005. In this session of the popular space camp, children ages 9-12 will learn what makes rockets fly as they build and launch a model rocket.

"Astro Camp crewmembers will design, build and test a rocket based on the principles that would be used to build a rocket suitable for returning astronauts to the Moon, traveling to Mars and beyond," said Maria Lott, Astro Camp Saturday director.

"Campers will look back at the exciting days of Apollo and will look ahead to the future of space exploration: the Moon, Mars and beyond."

"They'll explore the principles of space travel - how far away the Moon and Mars are, how long it would take to get there, what supplies they would need and how to survive in the environment of space."

The camp takes place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at StenniSphere, the visitor center at NASA's Stennis Space Center, America's largest rocket test complex. The cost is $50 per camper. Campers begin their mission at the Launch Pad,

Myrick wins local Geographic Bee

Nicholas Myrick, a 6th grade student at Coast 1 Episcopal School, won the school-level competition of the National Geographic Bee and a chance at a $25,000 scholarship. The school-level Bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first round in the 17th annual National Geographic Society.

The kickoff for this year's Bee was the week of November 15, with thousands of schools around the United States and in the five U.S. territories participating. The school winners, including Myrick, will now take a written test. Up to 100 of the top scorers in each state will be eligible to compete in their state Bee April 1.

The National

Geographic society will provide an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C. for state champions and teacher escorts to participate in the National Geographic Bee Championship May 24 and 25. The first-place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship and a lifetime membership to the society.

"Jeopardy" host Alex Trebek will moderate the national finals on May 25. The program will air on the National Geographic Channel, and afterward on public television stations, produced by Maryland Public Television.

The National Geographic Society is the world's largest nonprofit scientific and educational organization. The 116-year-old society reflects the world through magazines, books, maps, television and interactive media.

Battle -- from the Bay to N.O.

December was a huge feint by Pakenham to see how well the American line of raw troops would hold their position under the sight of columns of disciplined troops marching at them in order of battle. The feint failed completely and, rather than the Americans, it was the British that were impressed.

During this day's action, an even larger contingent of British troops had waited in the rear at the ready. Pakenham had positioned these troops there on the off chance that the advance attack had succeeded. These men stood in ranks in the cold, penetrating rain waiting long hours, listening to the distant sounds of the British and American guns. When at long last the guns became silent, these waiting British troops were told to stand down with little to show but misery for their long day's wait.

During this day's attack, the British made special arrangements to deal with Louisiana, hoping to deal with her as they had with Carolina. They set up special batteries equipped with ovens for heating shot. However, Louisiana proved to be a more formidable foe and, after a seven-hour duel, it was the British shore guns that became silent.

After this day, Patterson brought more naval guns down from their storage at the New Orleans Navy Yard. These were added to Jackson's line of cannon as well as on the western shore of the river. These latter guns were placed a mile or so below the American line so as to fire across the river into the flank of the British encampment.

The British meanwhile had worked to better the artillery that Pakenham strongly insisted his troops needed. However, they could not, as Patterson did, go a mere fifteen miles to a well-equipped Navy yard. Instead, fourteen heavy guns had to be rowed by barge the sixty miles from the fleet anchorage outside the coastal islands. Once at Chalmette, they were dragged through the wet, clinging, all pervading mud and manhandled into position behind the barricades opposite Jackson's line of field and naval guns.

What was most amazing about this almost superhuman feat was that its last stage, that is, the placing of the guns in large enclosures in the field in the very front of the American line, was done surreptitiously.

THE ACTION OF 1 JANUARY 1815

When the British opened fire with these large guns in a tremendous barrage early on the morning of 1 January, they caught the Americans completely by surprise. The American artillery began belatedly to answer the British guns and in moments a tremendous cannon duel erupted.

Five hours later most of the British guns had been silenced and the British forced to withdraw with severe casualties. The damages to the Americans in both men and cannon were minor. To any assessment of what had taken place, it would appear that the Americans artillery had simply outshot that of the British.

As with the previous effort, British troops had stood in ranks in the rear waiting for the guns to do their work so that they could advance.

Again, after hours of standing in ranks in cold rain, they were told to stand down.

THE GLORIOUS 8TH OF JANUARY 1815

With the upsets to his direct and indirect assaults,

General Pakenham now spent the next several days preparing for a full scale frontal attack on the American line using the cream of the well disciplined, experienced infantry he had at his disposal.

The attack on 8 January proved to be ill conceived and doomed to failure.

The main attack at Chalmette with its brave columns of troops marching across the muddy field directly into the accurate cannon and sharpshooter rifle fire of Jackson's line was a terrible disaster. More than 2000 of the attacking British were killed compared to a handful of the defending Americans. General Pakenham was killed in the assault while trying to rally his men to try again.

The British assault also included an attack on the west bank of the river. This attack, while successful was several hours late, due to problems crossing the river. When the main British attack failed, these forces retreated back across the river and rejoined the main British encampment.

At day's end, General Jackson's rag-tail force volunteer militia, free men of color, Indians, regular army Tennesseans and Kentuckians had faced the finest troops in the world of that period and had defeated them decisively.

JANUARY 8 THROUGH 27, 1815

In the days that followed, there was a little more action when the British sent a force of five ships up the Mississippi River to bombard Fort St. Philip, the only substantial fort between New Orleans and the river mouth.

This lasted for nine days, but the fort held and no further serious action was tried.

On 18 January, the British abandoned their encampment at the Villere Plantation and retreated, taking their wounded with them back to the anchorage of their fleet of ships South of Bay St Louis, outside the Ship / Cat Island pass. In doing so the British troops used the same barges going back that had so laboriously fought and worked to bring them to Chalmette to begin with.

The British fleet sailed away from their anchorage off of Cat and Ship Island on 27 January 1815. No foreign nation would ever again attack the United States mainland.

Forgiveness

Do not judge others, and God will not judge you; do not condemn others, and God will not condemn you; forgive others, and God will forgive you (Luke 6:37). There are many verses in the Bible like this one that tell us that we should forgive those who have offended or insulted us in one way or another. Often, relationships between families and friends have been destroyed because of the hardening of the heart and the refusal to forgive others for something that they may have said or done. Because we are close to our loved ones, we may feel that we can say things to them that we would never say to others. Although the spirit of forgiveness is not always easy, forgiveness is usually more important to those who have been offended than to those who have caused the offense. Quite often, a person may not even realize that they have said or done something that disturbs us, and frequently a person's words or actions may simply be misinterpreted. Forgiving others as God forgives us is necessary in order to live our lives as our Heavenly Father requires.

Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any Man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.

Faith lifts us all to Paradise

"Where was God?" Asked by Jew and Gentile alike, especially by the victims themselves, it was the one question asked repeatedly after the awful truth of the Holocaust had been fully revealed.

That same question was heard over and over again in many countries of the Pacific Rim of Fire after a planet-shaking earthquake rocked the Indian Ocean in the early morning of Christmas 2004. At 8:6, the quake was the strongest in 40 years, third after the 9.2 Alaskan earthquake of 1964 and the 9.5 Chilean monster of 1960.

"Where was God?" asked Abdon Simanullung, when he heard the news about his native water-ravaged Indonesia. A Divine Word Missionary brother working in Mt. Hagen, New Guinea, Abdon suffered the crushing loss of 14 members of his family to the rampaging tsunami spawned by the mind-boggling Christmas quake of 2004.

Struggling with the indescribable grief of losing so many family members in one fell swoop, Brother Abdon was interviewed on January 2, 2005, by a journalist of the Papua New Guinea Post-Courier. His heavy words of bereavement betray his bout with faith:

"If I was not religious and did not have a mission and divine calling to fulfill as a missionary in Papua New Guinea, then I am better off dying today because it is too hard for me to take this deep feeling of loss. I have never stopped crying since I got the news on the eve of Sunday December 26. Did God really do justice? Is God really there now to save? But having said this, I know God's peace has prevailed in these dark hours.

"I have made my vow to serve PNG and its people who are also my brothers and sisters. What has happened in Indonesia is a testing time for me but I trust God will see me through this. I will continue to serve God and remain in PNG because I have a mission to fulfill but I will continue to pray for my country and people.

"It was Christmas as usual. They were having the usual customary Christmas celebrations and spending a Christmas night together as a close family when disaster hit them and took their lives away. And I am left confused, lost and angry and am trying to come to terms with such a disaster. However, I have made my vows to serve God and therefore my principle is to accept the cross and the situation I am faced with. There has been a lot of comfort and prayers coming from brothers and sisters here in PNG which has greatly supported me."

Christmas as usual was the height of irony and heartbreak which could have afflicted a devout Christian family intimately engaged in the most joyous and spiritual celebration of the entire year. All of us would have had the same fond feelings which Brother Abdon had while thinking of his family celebrating Christmas back at home in Indonesia.

It was no consolation for him to reflect that he too might very well have been another casualty of the deadly tsunamis had he been in Indonesia at the time. Counting upwards of 80,000 dead from the Christmas tsunamis, Indonesia is certainly the epicenter of the Pacific Rim of Fire hotbed of volcanoes, earthquakes and tsunamis.

The worst, most powerful, most destructive eruptions known anywhere in the world have originated among the chain of islands still being birthed by hyperactive volcanoes. This is the very cradle of the hottest spots heaved forth from the bowels of the earth.

In April of 1816, Indonesia staged the most explosive eruption of the last 10,000 years. Its Mt. Tambora belched so much ash into the stratosphere - 150 times as much as Mt. St. Helens - that the ensuing months became known as "the year without a summer."

Hung up in the stratosphere for several years, the ash caused summer frost, some snowflakes and crop failures in the northern climes of the United States. It also triggered such reddish sunsets that at first fire engines were called out in Boston to extinguish fires.

And, of course, Mt. Krakatau, actuated the loudest known eruption of all time on August 27, 1883, reaching the ears of people 3000 miles away. It is also debatable whether Mt. Tambora's eruption was actually more powerful than Krakatau's.

Tropical-minded child that I am, all my years I have focused on my ideal images of tropical paradises like Indonesia, Thailand and the azure waters off the endless beaches of Polynesia. No wonder thousands from frigid Scandinavia and Europe have made a habit of fleeing Jack Frost to camp out on those beaches till the spring comes back home.

Against that backdrop, it seems the height of cruel irony that the tropical paradises are mainly within shouting distance of the Pacific Rim of Fire, making them susceptible to earthquakes, eruptions and the resulting tsunamis racing in at the speed of a jetliner.

One may wonder why so many people chance living and farming the rich land close to volcanoes, or why so many millions gamble on building homes, businesses and places of recreation on the attractive but dangerous coastal areas of the world.

However, no one can wonder why whole nations live in tropical paradise locales where the threat of volcanic eruptions, teeth-rattling earthquakes and tsunami episodes are part and parcel of the entire nation. Amazingly, this is true of quite a few countries. All of it feeds agonizingly into the strong admonition of Paul in Philippians 3:20-21:

"Our citizenship is in heaven, and from it we also await a savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. He will change our lowly body to conform with his glorified body."

Brother Abdon's present condition is tightly bound up in all these intriguing facts and circumstances. While feeling the horrible catastrophe swirling out of his beautiful native land, I am sure he would not dream of belonging to any other country.

Yet, that elusive tropical paradise ultimately serves only to point to our citizenship in heaven.

By no means is this meant to put down or make light of any nation or land. On the contrary, as flood-wracked Californians and Europeans would quickly agree, there is hardly any place on earth where we can feel secure in our worldly citizenship.

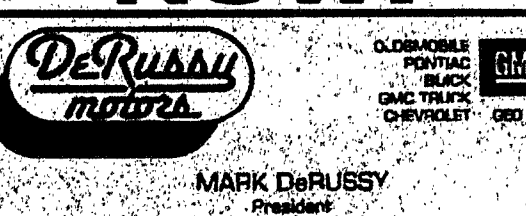

Above all, we all join with Brother Abdon in professing our faith and trust in God, and in supporting each other, especially in times of sickness, disaster and death.

You must be Born Again

The Jewish Passover was taking place in Jerusalem on the feast day.

Many believed in His name when they saw the miracles.

But, Jesus did not commit himself unto them because He knew what was in all men; and needed not that any should testify of man; for He knew what was in the heart of man. (John 2:23, 25)

What did Jesus know to say that He knew what was in the heart of man?

Could it be deceitfulness, hypocrisy, selfishness, murder, thievery, that fallen nature of mankind?

Nothing is hidden from Christ. The Son of God even this very moment knows our intent, our motives, whether they be good or evil.

The Lord Jesus in the very next chapter explains to a famous rabbi that man's fallen condition will keep him out of heaven. (John 3:3)

Man, for the most part, is self-centered, full of pride and is rebellious.

Reader, do you believe that man keeps the First Commandment? To love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, all thy mind, all thy strength? Most likely not.

Nevertheless, the love of God with His amazing grace and love for His creation, will give man eternal life if He is asked to.

The heart of God is much greater than the heart of man. When one becomes Born Again, God will then have man testify of Him.

The "Word" for the Week

Emotional involvement with God is paramount

An article in one of our local papers told about a fellow who did his masters thesis on the stress experienced by teenage athletes. This school psychologist concluded that teenage athletes is a religion.

It's true! The passion for the game! The cheerleaders stirring the crowd to an emotional frenzy! As the clock ticks down the final seconds, the two teams go into overtime!

We rarely criticize such emotional involvement except when there is emotion with God! After all we don't want to be radical! Getting excited about basketball is only natural. But why get all excited about God? Why get emotionally involved with Jesus Christ? The point is this. If you are going to participate in a religion, you had better get involved in true religion rather than false religion. Now basketball is not innately evil. It is a game. Basketball is not a god nor are basketball games religious services. But to treat them as such is to engage in false worship. Better that you should engage in true worship of the God of the Bible. Better that you should become emotionally involved with Jesus Christ. The First of the Ten Commandments says, "You shall have no other gods before Me" (Exodus 20:3). False worship is sin. Jesus Christ died to pay the penalty for sin due to people like you and me. When you turn from false worship, you must turn to Christ. When you turn to Christ, you must trust in the sacrifice of Christ as the only payment for your sins of false worship. Quite frankly, you must become emotionally involved with Christ. You see, true faith is a matter of heart.

It involves your mind, your will and your emotions.

CBM & the Bear

First grade students in Allison McCraw's class at Charles B. Murphy Elementary in Pearlinton recently hosted Albert, a traveling bear. Albert is the class mascot from a first grade class in Ohio and is on a yearlong trek to visit 1st grade classrooms in all fifty states. To keep track of Albert's travels, he has a website and scrapbook. McCraw's class sent Albert on to his next destination with many Mardi Gras surprises.

Spring enrollment at Pearl River reaches record levels

Pearl River Community College officials have announced that the 2005 spring semester enrollment is the largest in the school's 96-year history.

Through the end of late registration Friday, spring enrollment was up 292 students, including 191 full-time students, to a total of 3,857 students on both the Poplarville and Hattiesburg campuses, as well as the newly-opened Hancock Center in Waveland. That's an 8.2 percent increase over spring enrollment in 2004.

"I commend the PRCC faculty, staff and administrators for their outstanding efforts," said PRCC President William Lewis. "This enrollment increase demonstrates that our efforts to attract and hold students from within our six-county district have been successful."

This news follows record enrollment during the 2004 fall semester, which was up 6.4 percent over the 2003 fall semester.

Dr. John Grant, Dean of Academic Affairs, reports that all core classes on both the Poplarville and Hattiesburg campuses are virtually full to capacity. "That includes weekend classes, which we are offering on both campuses," said Grant. "We also have extension classes in Waveland, Picayune and Columbia, as well as classes at Stennis Space Center."

Spring enrollment at PRCC's Forrest County Center is at 1,255 students, up from 1,149, or 9.2 percent, from a year ago, and up from 1,034 in spring 2003, or 21.4 percent.

According to Dr. Cecil Burt, Dean of the Forrest County Center, "This is the most students we've ever had in Hattiesburg in the spring semester," he said. "We are having to accommodate the overload, we are adjusting some schedules. We're getting it done. It's a good problem to have."

Burt believes that growth should continue in the future. "We are anticipating additional growth in the fall," he said. "The Forrest County Center is continuing to diversify its academic offerings, and, as we do that, we anticipate additional growth."

Adam Breerwood, dean of student affairs, reported that campus housing for male students is filled with a dozen or so students on the waiting list, while there are a few vacancies for female students.

"Housing is not as critical an issue in the spring semester as it was in the fall semester when we had long waiting lines," said Breerwood.

"Overall, this increase in students is a true indicator of the quality programs that we have at Pearl River. An education here continues to be an economic bargain for our students."

Enrollment at the Hancock Center in Waveland is at 114 students. The center is located in a vacant Wal-Mart building on U.S. 90 in Waveland. The center has three classrooms, a conference room and some offices.

"Our increased enrollment in recent years offers strong endorsement for the academic and career-technical education offered at Pearl River," said Chuck Abadie, Director of Public Relations. "This is certainly good news for our institution."

Don Welsh, director of the Poplarville Career-Tech Center, said there were still openings in some programs, including Office Systems Technology, Construction Management Technology, and Heating, Air Conditioning and Refrigeration.

For information about these programs, call (601) 403-1241 or 1242.

Pearl River Community College Associate Degree Nursing Instructor Joyce Bule advises student Nicole Hughes of Bay St. Louis with her school schedule during spring registration last week.

Cracknor Cause Celebre.
It's a big name for the wee Norfolk terrier who won the title of best in show in the 2003 AKC Eukanuba National Championship. Small enough to fit inside the winner's cup, CoCo has some big competition this time around for the award coveted by professional breeders.
The AKC Eukanuba National Championship is expanding its 2005 television coverage to include two days of live programming from Tampa, Fla., beginning Jan. 15 and concluding Sunday, Jan. 16, on Animal Planet and Discovery Channel. Seven groups of canines will be narrowed down to seven dogs, who then proceed to be scrutinized by best in show judge Michele L. Billings.

The groups consist of sporting, hound, nonsporting, toy, working, terrier and herding breeds. Within each classification is a wide variety of canines. The terriers, of which CoCo is one, has 28 breeds vying for top honors.

It isn't just size that determines the group in which a dog is placed. For example, a Welsh corgi is much smaller than an Old English sheepdog, but both are represented in the herding group. Yes, despite the little legs, corgis are bred to herd much larger animals.

And although most judges usually have a favorite pooch, they are required to make sure certain criteria, such as height, color and build, are met. But then again, only the best from around the world are let into this competition.

Judges stuck with the difficult task of choosing one dog over another include Betty-Anne Stanmark of California, Marjorie Martorella of New Jersey, Enrique Jorge Filippini of Argentina and Maxine V. Beam of Texas.

The championship is a very intense event for those involved, but there's something very satisfying about watching a dog trot around the ring, tongue hanging out and eyes bright with the knowledge that his handler thinks only humans are in control.

"PGA Golf" Thursday, Jan. 20 (USA Network, 3 p.m. ET): Success came fast and furious for John Daly, beginning with his rookie year PGA Championship and another major title - the 1995 British Open - soon after. But then things went dry on the course for Daly about the same time his drinking off it escalated, until his near nine-year, 189-tournament winless streak ended in last year's Buick Invitational. Mr. "Grip It and Rip It" returns to defend his title beginning today at Torrey Pines in San Diego.

"College Basketball" Thursday, Jan. 20 (ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): Big Ten powers Illinois and Iowa have been so dominant this season, they could enter tonight's clash in Champaign with a combined 33-1 record. The Illini won their first 12 games - and ascended to the nation's top-ranked spot - by effortlessly moving the ball on offense thanks to the play of junior guards Deron Williams and Dee Brown. The Hawkeyes, led by slashing guard Pierre Pierce, suffered their only loss through 11 games at North Carolina.

"NBA Basketball" Friday, Jan. 21 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): Now that Jermaine O'Neal is back, the Indiana Pacers can fully focus on climbing back up the standings. They posted a 5-10 record during O'Neal's brawl-induced 15-game suspension to stay within striking distance in the watered-down Eastern Conference playoff chase. Topping those standings are the Miami Heat, thanks to the NBA's other dominating center named O'Neal. Shaquille and Jermaine go face to face tonight in the Sunshine State.

John Daly defends his title in the Buick Invitational Thursday through Sunday on USA Network and ABC.

Nicholas Gonzalez

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Marissa Cooper won't have D.J. to kick around any longer.

After several episodes riding an emotional roller coaster with Mischa Barton's boozy and conflicted teenage character on "The O.C.," actor Nicholas Gonzalez is leaving the Thursday Fox soap.

"It's been a great opportunity for me," Gonzalez says. "The business decision for me to go on the show was mainly to give me some more exposure, but I've had a great time and gotten quite a bit of attention from it. This is just a great cast to work with. Peter Gallagher and Kelly Rowland are such class acts."

A fast-rising star, Gonzalez is moving on to other, larger projects, including "The Devil's Highway," an upcoming film in which he plays a rookie border patrol cop. He also has a prominent new recurring role as Mike Sandoval, an undercover narcotics cop, in NBC's "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit."

"Mike may become a new addition to the show," Gonzalez says of the latter role. "It's a great character, and I'm lucky enough to be working with some really good people once again."

A native of Texas, Gonzalez excelled in both his high-school studies as well as athletics, especially cross-country.

running. He turned down a presidential appointment to West Point, his father's alma mater, to pursue an English degree at Stanford University, where he also started doing plays.

"After graduation, I moved to Los Angeles to do more theater, not realizing there is very little theater in L.A.," he says, laughing. "It was a lucky mistake, though, because after just 2 1/2 months of waiting tables, my TV and film career really took off."

Born: Jan. 3, 1976, in San Antonio.
Family ties: Father is a dermatologist and mother is a bookkeeper; divorced when Nicholas was a child; one brother, one half sister.

Education: B.A. in English from Stanford University; spent two terms at Oxford University completing a thesis on James Joyce's "Ulysses."

Cowell begins the hunt for fourth 'American Idol'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Simon Cowell is starting all over again.

Past seasons of "American Idol" don't necessarily factor in when the famously snarky British recording executive and his cohorts in judging, Paula Abdul and Randy Jackson, start gauging another crop of pop-star wannabes. The fourth season of the hugely popular Fox talent contest begins with a two-hour episode Tuesday, Jan. 18, with Ryan Seacrest also back as the host of weekly editions again airing each Tuesday and Wednesday.

Holding to "Idol" tradition, the new season opens with highlights of auditions. Cowell, Abdul and Jackson endured in their quest to find finalists for the competition. Cleveland, New Orleans, Las Vegas, Orlando, Fla., San Francisco, St. Louis, and Washington, D.C. were the tryout cities that ultimately could yield another "Idol" winner like Kelly Clarkson, Ruben Studdard or Fantasia Barrino.

However, last year's edition also produced William Hung, who gained fame simply by butchering any tune he could wrap his vocal cords around, starting with Ricky Martin's "She Bangs."

"We've had what we call the Hung Effect" this time," Cowell reports. "There's no question we've had people showing up and singing badly on purpose. They may as well have neon signs on their foreheads. That whole thing came down to one word, naïveté. Even at the point where (Hung) got a recording contract and was talking about doing a second album, I told him, 'There will be no second album.' That sort of delusion was part of his charm."

For better or worse, each phase of "American Idol" still seems fresh to Cowell. "The good thing is that because it's a reality show, it's not scripted. Because you have a new group of people showing up (to try out), it does sort of feel like a new show each time. Having me and Paula and Randy and Ryan around gives it consistency, but it's always new faces otherwise, so you have to approach it like it's the very first show."

Even after three seasons, Cowell hesitates to get too specific on what's sought in an "American Idol." He reasons, "What you can do is look back and think, 'What was the best year? And why?' Without question, the best 'American Idol' year for me was the second one. It resulted in the best final we've ever had, with two people (Studdard and Clay Aiken) who never would have been given a shot in the music industry under normal circumstances. The lessons really are 'Don't get too smart' and 'Let the public choose the talent for you.' Then you'll get it right."

"We genuinely didn't know who was going to win that one," Cowell adds, "whereas in the first and third seasons, it was quite obvious. Until the moment the result was read, and I was convinced from the previous episode that it was going to be the other way around - it was exciting for all of us. I hope we can get back to where we were then, because that was just a great season."

Among "Idol" changes this year: an increase in the cutoff age for contestants, from 24 to 28; a tightening of the semifinal round, from five weeks to three, with 24 finalists selected instead of the previous 32; the addition of music stars such as Kenny Loggins and LL Cool J to gauge auditions; and the expected absence of celebrity guests when it comes to the actual judging.

Cowell never seems at a loss for unique critiques or outright put-downs of music hopefuls who don't make the grade for him. "They make it easy. The only way you can do this is to go in without any preconceived ideas at all as to what you'll do or say. Luckily, we have the luxury on this show of being able to say exactly what we're thinking as the audition is happening."

Some of those who audition are more than ready for that, going on the attack before Cowell can. "The funny thing," he notes, "is that this is such a true reality show; no matter what you plan to say or do, every person who enters that room knows the next two to three minutes could dictate the rest of their lives. Everything that's preplanned disappears. Most of the aggression comes from the fact that they simply want to get through the audition successfully, and when I say 'No,' they just go nuts. That's good, though. That's the way it should be."

One TV Lenz isn't another's offspring

Q: Is Bethany Joy Lenz of "One Tree Hill" any relation to the '70s and '80s actress Kay Lenz? —Pamela Lawrence, via e-mail.

A: We recently had the chance to put that to Bethany Joy Lenz herself. The delightful young actress told us, "I get that question all the time. I am not related to Kay Lenz, which I know seems odd, because I think we really do look alike. I knew who she was, but I had never really seen her until I Tivo'd an episode of 'MacGyver' she was in. I'd love to meet her someday and tell her how many people ask about the two of us."

Incidentally, Bethany Joy will return as singer and young wife Haley when "One Tree Hill" resumes new episodes on The WB Network on Tuesday, Jan. 25; the same day Warner Home Video releases a DVD set of the drama's first season.

Q: Why did Daniel Davis, who played the butler on Fran Drescher's "The

Bethany Joy Lenz

Nanny," not attend the reunion show? —Maria L., Franklin, Wis.

A: He had a New York stage commitment that precluded him from taking the cross-country trip, when the recently aired Lifetime special was made last summer in California.

Q: A movie that was out a couple of years ago was about a mother and daughter being chased by a killer, and they escaped into an elevator. Do you know the name of it, and will it be appearing on TV? —Jill Wonsell, Chicago.

A: Sounds to us like you're thinking of "Panic Room," the 2002 thriller that starred Jodie Foster and Kristen Stewart as the threatened pair. The picture was shown on TNT for the first time recently, and that network tends to give its newer film-movie titles a number of plays over a span of several months, so we bet it will turn up there again sooner than later. Sister network TBS shares big movie titles such as that one, and is likely to show it, too, at some point in the not-too-distant future.

Susan Walters moves to 'Point Pleasant'

Susan Walters

It's a long way from Genoa City to "Point Pleasant," where things get stirred up when Christina (Elisabeth Harnois, "All My Children"), the daughter of the devil, washes up on shore. But former "The Young and the Restless" star Susan Walters (ex-Diane Jenkins) says it was a journey she was happy to make. The supernatural drama premieres Wednesday, Jan. 19, on Fox.

"I was so attracted to the script and the fact that the people were all fighting something within themselves," says the Atlanta native. "It had the sense of the supernatural, obviously, but it wasn't like demons and monsters. Rather, we see the monster inside of my husband, Ben (Richard Burgi), and the monster inside of my character."

And while Walters is quick to point out that this is not "Passions" with its quirky humor, the two shows do share one common theme: the battle between good and evil. And like a daytime drama, "Point Pleasant" will have a continuous story line.

"I think it is nice for the audience because they can follow along with the characters," she says. "The audience also knows more about Christina than we do. I like that it is ongoing and we see these people in their everyday life."

"Point Pleasant" also stars Sam Page, Aubrey Dollar, Brent Weber, Cameron Richardson, Alex Carter, Clare Carey and former "Melrose Place" star Grant Show.

Dear Paulette: Sally Spectra on "The Bold and the Beautiful" is seen sitting down in episodes. I would like to know, did she have an accident offstage? Thank you. —B. Jones, Arkoma, Okla.

Dear Reader: Darlene Conley, who plays Sally, caught her heel and tripped in a parking lot last July and broke her leg. The show wrote around it for a while, but trouper that she is, Conley wanted to come back to work. So the show is writing her scenes so she can sit down while she heals. It was a bad break and is taking some time.

Movie: Decoration Day

James Garner is excellent as retired judge Albert Finch in this 1990 Hallmark Hall of Fame movie. Perfectly content to live as a recluse, Finch's routine is disrupted by a childhood friend (Bill Cobbs). Gee (Cobbs) is slated to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery during WWII, but he adamantly refuses to accept it. Finch sets off to convince Gee that it's OK to let the world in. Ruby Dee, Laurence Fishburne and Judith Ivey co-star.

Tuesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

American Idol
Who'll be the next Kelly, Ruben or Fantasia? That's the question as the hit series returns for a fourth round of stamaking. It begins with a two-hour episode featuring highlights and lowlights of auditions in seven cities. Paula Abdul, Randy Jackson and the indomitable Simon Cowell return as judges.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

My Wife and Kids
The gift of a football game brings out Jr.'s (George O. Gore II) competitive side — and his insufferable one, especially when he wins. Michael (Damon Wayans) challenges and beats him, hoping to show him how a gracious winner behaves. The more he wins, however, the more hooked on the game he gets, until he's a candidate for Foosballers Anonymous. Tisha Campbell-Martin also stars in the new episode "They Call Me El Foisay."

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

The Biggest Loser

Wait, didn't the season finale air last week? It did; this new episode is a bonus edition, which follows up on some of the surprise announcements that came out in the finale, and catches up with contestants who were voted out of the competition during the season's run. Caroline Rhea hosts.

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

George Lopez

Would you risk a friendship if you thought your buddy was about to get hurt? That's what George (George Lopez) is asking himself when Emile (Valente Rodriguez) announces his marriage plans. His intended appears to have a problem with alcohol, and George sees lots of heartburn ahead if they wed. In the new episode "Friends Don't Let Friends Marry Drunks."

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

In the new episode "The Nanny-Cam," Jim (Jim Belushi) sets up a hidden camera to keep an eye on a baby sitter he doesn't trust. Instead of picking up anything incriminating on the sitter, however, the camera catches Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith) hiding money from her husband. When Cheryl finds out Jim's been spying on her, she gets her own "nanny-cam" and turns it on him.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Scrubs

The egos of J.D. and the Janitor (Zach Braff, Neil Flynn) are taking a beating at Elliot's (Sarah Chalke) hands — J.D. because she keeps outdoing him in patient care, and the Janitor because of the way she rushed off after their coffee date. Thinking he scared her away by overdressing, he makes up an excuse for his attire — which backfires. Turk (Donald Faison) turns his diabetes into a game in the new episode "My Ocardial Infarction."

8:30 p.m. on 6-NBC

Committed

Marni and Nate (Jennifer Finnigan, Josh Cooke) spend their first night together and are looking forward to an equally romantic day. Tess (Tammy Lynn Michaels) has even agreed to handle an important errand for Nate so the happy couple won't be interrupted. Unfortunately, events seem to conspire against their plans, starting with a bombshell dropped by Marni's dad. Tom Poston also stars in the new episode "The Morning After."

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Judging Amy

Life just got a bit more complicated for Amy (Amy Brenneman) in the new episode "The Long Run." While David (Adrian Pasdar) is away on a sailing trip, Amy discovers she's pregnant. Can you say, "Honey, we need to talk"? And talk they do, trying to sort out their feelings and their future. At work, Amy deals with the case of a boy who shot his teacher.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

In "Identity," Berison and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) investigate what looks like a clear-cut case of retribution: a gang member pushed to his death from a roof after committing a sexual assault. But the subsequent death of the young woman (guest star Regan Thompson) whom he attacked shows the detectives that this one won't be so easy after all. Mary Stuart Master-son guest stars.

Ben and Sue (Jon Foster, Jessica Lucas) have been forbidden to see each other, but that doesn't stop them from planning a rendezvous on the class ski trip. Donald Trump welcomes a new group of contestants seeking the chance to work for him in this 90-minute opener to the reality series' new season. These competitors will reportedly be divided into

"Street Smart" and "Book Smart" teams, although it could be argued that all of them are smarter all around about what it'll take to get hired, having sat through two seasons already and learned something about what makes The Donald tick.

In the new episode "Only Con-

The need for such help becomes especially evident when Neela's (Parminder Nagra) clumsy delivery sends a deceased patient's grandmother into hysterics. A personal-injury lawyer sets up shop outside the ER, causing Lewis' (Sherry Stringfield) blood to boil.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS
Without a Trace
A touch of "The X-Files" influences "Light Years," which puts the agents on the trail of a missing X-ray technician (guest star David Eigenberg) long convinced he was an alien abductee. Other self-proclaimed ex-captives maintain they have been followed by a couple of mysterious men. Jack's (Anthony LaPaglia) past affair with Sam (Poppy Montgomery) factors into his divorce case.

In Focus

As Emmy and Golden Globe Award winner Tony Shalhoub returns for his third season of "Monk" starting Friday, Jan. 21, on USA Network, the obsessive-compulsive detective gets a new female comrade. Replacing former series co-star Billy Schram is Traylor Howard ("Two Guys and a Girl") as Natalie, a single parent and bartender who initially needs Monk's help after two break-ins at her home. It doesn't take the quirky private detective long to decide he wants her to be more than a client.

With the penchant Robin Williams has for doing his own thing, bank on plenty of sweating in the control room when he takes the stage to accept the Cecil B. DeMille Award for career achievement during NBC's telecast of the 82nd Annual Golden Globe Awards on Sunday, Jan. 16. As the Hollywood Foreign Press Association doles out its honors for movies and TV shows of 2004, a sure favorite will be "Sideways," the independent feature that earned the most nominations of any film.
